200 AND COUNTING

The city of Greensboro is celebrating its 200th birthday in 2008. We welcome you to be a part of the excitement!

The Greensboro Bicentennial Commission is preparing for the biggest celebration this vibrant, growing city has ever seen. Its mission is to commemorate the founding of Greensboro in 1808 with historical, educational, and multicultural celebrations for the entire community. These celebrations will take place over a period of 54 days during the spring of 2008.

PAST, PRESENT & FUTURE

In addition to celebrating the city's first 200 years, we're also looking ahead:

- The Bicentennial Commission is planning events and activities that will showcase our city and its strengths to a state, regional, and potentially national audience.
- Our World of Tomorrow Science and Technology Expo will offer a vision of Greensboro's future in an exciting multi-media, interactive setting.
- Greensboro200.com, the official Greensboro Bicentennial interactive website, will give Greensboro's residents and organizations a forum to discuss visions and goals for the city's future.
- The Bicentennial celebration will generate awareness and excitement about Greensboro and has the potential to provide a springboard for new economic development opportunities.

SUPPORTING THE BICENTENNIAL

The Bicentennial Commission is seeking funds to help make this celebration a reality for Greensboro.

- The Greensboro community will fund a majority of the celebration.
- Funds are being sought from individuals, corporations, businesses, foundations, associations and civic groups.
- The Greensboro Bicentennial is a non-profit 501(c)(3) and our funds are administered by the Community Foundation of Greater Greensboro.
- Donations to the Bicentennial are tax deductible.

Commission Co-Chair Al Lineberry, Jr. says, "Funding it in this way offers everyone in the community opportunities to get involved and support the Bicentennial. This is an event that not everyone gets to experience in their lifetime. The Bicentennial will be a part of our city's history forever and those who get involved will make their mark."

We invite you to be as generous as possible and help celebrate our past, present and future today!
